

PLANNING & COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

City of Orange, Texas

ZONING

Determines what land uses are compatible near each other

Zoning establishes the types of uses permitted on a parcel of land. Zoning also sets the development standards for a site such as building height, setbacks, floor to area ratio, neighborhood compatibility, screening, landscaping, and impervious cover limits.

THE GOAL

To create a City that protects and recognizes its historical resources, protects existing residential neighborhoods, provides for the development of new neighborhoods, provides for incentives to support new and existing commercial and manufacturing facilities, and that establishes a new urban design standard that will revitalize and reinforce the quality of Orange.

What are the Zoning districts?

Residential

- R-1 Low density (6,000 sq ft lots min)
- R-2 Medium density (5,000 sq ft lots min)
- R-3 High density (apartments)
- R-4 Manufactured housing

Industrial

Mixed Use Zoning District

Commercial

- C-1 Light Commercial
- C-2 Commercial
- C-S Commercial Special
- C-S -Cove Commercial Special Cove
- OTC Old Town Center
- IDC Interstate Development Corridor

DID YOU HEAR ABOUT THE SUBDIVISION ORDINANCE?

If the answer is no, here are highlights on what you need to know.

City of Orange Code of Ordinances Chapter 9 Subdivision Regulations

If the answer is yes, great! Continue reading to make sure you've covered everything.

Subdivision Ordinance Amendments

- Comprehensive amendment of the subdivision ordinance
- Solicited input from Orange County Drainage District (OCCD), City staff, developers, engineering/survey firms, County officials, City Attorney
- Clarifies some regulations, eliminates conflicting requirements and corrects typographical errors.
- Adds definitions

- Requires compliance with OCDD rules and regulations (exempt properties in Newton County).
- Allows Director of Planning and Community Development to approve preliminary plats, final plats, and replats of four new lots or less. Decisions of Director can be appealed to the City Council.
- Complies with State law concerning review times.
- Adds to the items that must be submitted (application, letters from utilities, letter from OCDD, etc.) prior to approval.
- Requires that if a Traffic Impact Analysis is required by TxDOT that a copy must be given to the City.
- Allows for a combined preliminary and final plat if can be served by existing streets, utilities, fire hydrants and street lights.
- Expands and provides the processes for minor plats and replats.
- Prohibits further subdividing of a minor plat until one year from the date the original plat was filed.
- Clarifies that properties where the City cannot provide water and sewer service may use water wells, septic tanks, other municipal utilities or special districts.
- Requires plats in the ETJ to comply with the County regulations of the County that the property lies in, and the OCDD if the property is located within Orange County.
- Allows for electronic submissions.
- Requires a signed letter from the applicant's engineer to the Public Works Director stating all requirements have been met before the final plat can be approved.
- Incorporates lot consolidation and lot line adjustment into Code of Ordinances.
- Requires developers to post a performance bond or unconditional guarantee in a form that is acceptable to the City Manager.
- Requires the developer to guarantee the material and workmanship are free of defects for two years instead of one year.
- Applies to plats filed after the second reading of the ordinance and publication as required by State Law.

PLANNING DEPARTMENT PROJECT UPDATES

A father and son volunteered to clean up a substandard property in their neighborhood on Bowling Lane. Initially, the duo contacted the Code Enforcement department concerned with the condition of the property and to inquire if they could help in any way. Officer John Dee Taylor provided assistance with a path forward for the volunteers. Within a day the area was all cleaned up.

We would like to say thank you to these two residents for their time and efforts to keep Orange beautiful!
